quartz

ã‚-ãƒªãƒŠã‚®

I can't imagine nothing more tedious than trying to have fun with you again
Maybe it's just something in my mind
But I hate feeling like I'm trying all the time
It's a kind of lie when we pretend that we're still friendsAnd every time I smile to wonder if I'm laughing at you
And with every little grin you don't want to be wondering Just exactly what it is I'm taking pleasure inAlthough I always said we were basically the same and all one, all one
It's so easy to persuade myself that I'm clockwork and you're quartz
I'm clockwork and you're quartzYou're only happy when you're oiled and jeweled
You're only happy when you wind me up
And I know you're so reliable, it isn't true
And it's so easy for me to break downIf I could jump a ride between the skin and silicon
We could join hands and understand, hallelujah
But I listen to my own ticking
I guess we're worlds apart but it's so hard, so hard, so hard

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/