Unfold

Kaj.

What I can remember is a lot like water
Trickling down a page of the most beautiful colors
I can't quite put my finger
Down on the moment that I became like this
You see I'm the bravest girl you'll ever come to meet
Yet I shrink down to nothing
At the thought of someone really seeing me
I think my heart is wrapped around
And tangled up in winding weeds
But I don't wanna go on living
Being so afraid of showing
Someone else my imperfections
Even though my feet are trembling
And every word I say comes stumbling
I will bare it all, watch me unfold, unfold, unfold
These hands that I hold behind my back
Are bound and broken by my own doing
And I can't feel anything anymore
I need a touch to remind me, I'm still real, oh no
And I don't wanna go on living
Being so afraid of showing
Someone else my imperfections
Even though my feet are trembling
And every word I say comes stumbling
I will bare it all, watch me unfold, unfold, unfold
Unfold, unfold, unfold
My soul, it's dying to be freed
See I can't live the rest of my life so guarded
It's dying to be freed, it's up to me to choose
What kind of life I lead
'Cause I don't wanna go on living
Being so afraid of showing
Someone else my imperfections
And even though my feet are trembling
And every word I say comes stumbling
I will bare it all, watch me unfold, unfold, unfold
Unfold, unfold, unfold
I will allow someone to love me
I will allow someone to love me

I will allow someone to love me
I will allow someone to love me
Love me, love me, love me
