Fireworks

Mitski

One morning this sadness will fossilize
And I will forget how to cry
I'll keep going to work and he won't see a change
Save perhaps a slight gray in my eyeI will go jogging routinely
Calmly and rhythmically run
And when I find that a knife sticking out of my side
I'll pull it out without questioning whyAnd then one warm summer night
I'll hear fireworks outside
And I'll listen to the memories as they cry, cry, cryI will be married to silence
The gentleman won't say a word
But you know, oh you know in the quiet he holds
Runs a river that'll never find home
And then one warm summer night
I'll hear fireworks outside
And I'll listen to the memories as they cry, cry, cry
Oh, one warm summer
I'll hear fireworks outside
And I'll listen to the memories as they cry, cry, cry
Cry, cry, cry
Cry, cry, cry
