The Only Thing That Glistens

For the Foxes

I've been staring at this walls long enough to deck the halls if Carolina sings the blues I'll request a song from me to you and tell you how to measure love you'll tell me how to measure dust you said don't mix the past and future up it just blurs a line that never was is it true?
i never thought I'd ever lose you red and green turn black and blue you're the only thing that ever glistened this Christmas I'll be missing you silent night no mistletoe I'm kissin' on your Christmas ghost if the season bring you back to me i will make that wish on new years ever cause you're that gift i never earned but this state is known to have a curse Nat King Cole i guess he never learned chestnuts unattended always burn they burn
is it true?
when red and green turn black and blue you're the only thing that ever glistened
white blankets bright lights starry eyed skies won't you come home tonight?
it's true...
red and green turn black and blue
