Not Just a Woman

Rob Thomas

She's just a woman
Not just a woman
She's terrified and
She's unafraidShe'll change her mind
With the change of the seasons
She's every reason
You'll ever needShe'll never say what you should
Already know by now
Sometimes you'll swear
She can read your mindSometimes she'll seem as if
She's broken down
Yeah, but everything that's perfect
Took a little workin' out, yeahShe's just a woman
Not just a woman
She'll break your heart
And she'll make you strongAnd she can take you
Completely make you
So uncertain but
So better offShe'll never say what you should
Already know by now
Sometimes you'll swear
She can read your mindAt times she'll seem as if
She's broken down
Yeah, but everything was workin'
Why'd you have to let her down again, againShe's just a woman
Not just a woman
She's terrified
And she's unafraidShe is an icon
She keeps her brights on She'll break your heart, yeah
But she's got her waysShe's just a woman
Not just a woman
She's complicated
With an easy smileShe is a genius
But she don't see it
She is a dream
In your waking hourShe'll never say what you should
Already know by now
Sometimes you'll swear

She can read your mindAt times she'll seem as if
She's broken down
Yeah, but everything that's perfect
Gets a little worn, little worn downLittle worn down, yeah
Little worn down
A little worn down

Songwriters
THOMAS, ROB /Published by Lyrics Â© Sony/ATV Music Publishing LLC

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/