Waiting for a Sign

Kensington

Slow down, before you're stabbing my eyes out
Calm down, for this time it's not all on me
Good times when you're wasting your time,
Good times when you're wasting your time onNot the first time I'm raising my eyebrows
Not the last time enjoying your company
Bad sign when your words drown in I,
Bad sign when your words drown in IronyYou're self-indulgent
You just love the sound of your own voiceI am waiting for a sign, I'm aching to release
This pressure that's been rising, I'm prepared to fight it
Running both eyes blinded, I'm taking on the beast
It's me versus Goliath, I'm all weak in the kneesNo space for additional inanity
No room for inadequate self-belief
No time for me wasting my time
No time for your pseudo psychologyNot the first time I'm praying for an alibi
Not the last time annoyed by your company
White flag still waving around
White flag now merged with my bodyYou're self-indulgent
You just love the sound of your own voiceI am waiting for a sign, I'm aching to release
This pressure that's been rising, I'm prepared to fight it
Running both eyes blinded, I'm taking on the beast
It's me versus Goliath, I'm all weak andI wake, I will wake up in this cage, where attacks aimed at my heart,
Always catching me off guard, when I hold my head downI am waiting for a sign, I'm aching to release
This pressure that's been rising, I'm prepared to fight it
Running both eyes blinded, I'm taking on the beast
It's me versus Goliath, I'm all weak in the knees

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/