Lucia

Polvo

When winter suspends
The summer charade
It's hard to abide this
And try to persuadeSomeday when I can speak clearly
A storm will rise
If you should pass byThe color of leaves on October trees
It's beautiful when the leaves are dying again
The changes keep me alive
And soothe me
All of the timeNew moon shatters the sky
Open your eyes and tell me goodbye
Mute face reflecting the rays
Moonbeams are pulling you away
Lucia
I thought you were goneToo long coming to terms
A little late to learn
I share thoughts with paper and fire
To save you
Destroying my desireBlind eyes struggle to see
I'm in a hole
God, it takes a toll
The dirt, roots.... I wish I could show you
I don't know if I should let it goReal life beckons your love
There's a meteor streaking in the heavens above
A cold light filtering through you
I can't say that I really knew youLast time
An easy embrace
I memorize your face
It's a mute face, reflecting the rays
Moonbeams are pulling you away

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/