Paying

Sarah Bethe Nelson

don't ask me "you still understand?" when you know that I do but this is the last time I'll be saying those words to you and this is the last night you can walk in like you own the place and flash me a secret smile while you're lying right to my face(chorus) this is the last time I'll be making your drinks on the house
'cause you'll be paying starting right now you'll be paying starting right nowI dreamt I was being drowned in the waters between your house and mine I woke up thinking that I needed you, but that was for the last time 'cause you are the ghost in the darkness out in the trees it's funny that I used to think about you as the light on the leavesthis is the last time I'll be making your drinks on the house
'cause you'll be paying starting right now you'll be paying starting right nowyou still think it's romantic to be star crossed there'll always be someone willing to pay the cost but this is my last ride, take my final token every word that wanted to be said has been spokenthis is the last time I'll be making your drinks on the house
'cause you'll be paying starting right now you'll be paying starting right nowthis is the last time I'll be making your drinks on the house
'cause you'll be paying starting right now you'll be paying starting right now starting right now
starting right now

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/