Waterfall

The Echoing Green

Autumn comes and the leaves turn brown
Ashes come and we all fall down
I wish I could find a way
To hold the day
Captive to the words you sayYou know that it's not easy
To lift these feelings
Up off the ground
And when I seem so distant
I feel your insistent love surround me...Under the waterfall
I'm finally letting down my walls
Under the waterfall
All my burdens feel so smallThunder comes and the sky turns gray
Evidence of the world astray
Sometimes it holds me down
With my eyes to the ground
To never see the light of daySometimes I feel like running away
On the grayest of days
And the darkest of nights
Yet you replace my sorrow
With the hope of tomorrow
And the coming of lightUnder the waterfall
I'm finally letting down my walls
Under the waterfall
All my burdens feel so smallAnd if the only way to You was down
I'd willingly drown to find You there
Your whispering grace
The tears on your face
Filling the sea of forgivenessUnder the waterfall
I'm finally letting down my walls
Under the waterfall
All my burdens feel so small

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/