The Day That Saved Us

Automatic Loveletter

Walking down the street that we grew up in
But today is not the same
It's like a different town
A different place, a different name
I kick my heels against the curb
Throw a stone to where you live
To hoping I'll see you again
Hope is low, will you show?
And I remember that day that saved us
The way you kissed me and the salt, it filled my eyes
We remember our California
The night we slept along the shore and washed away
Lying on the sand, the waves are talking
And the humming of the trains
But it's a different sound
A different cloud, a different rain
My blood flows faster with every thought
Of everything that happened here
And it takes the pain away
Hope is low, will you show again?
And I remember that day that saved us
The way you kissed me and the salt, it filled my eyes
We remember our California
The night we slept along the shore and washed away
I remember the day that saved us
The way you kissed me and the salt, it filled my eyes
And I remember that day that saved us
The way you kissed me and the salt, it filled my eyes
We remember our California
The night we slept along the shore and washed away
Do you remember it? I still remember this
Do you remember me?
Do you remember it? I still remember this
Do you remember me?
