Supernatural

Artemis

can't pull the world over my eyes got no splinter in my mind could you be anyone i say too much for the emptiness tangle it in pencil fences we walk in twisted midnight under an alien sky the moon your truest lover a little like mine supernatural love

you leave the message for me written in street signs lit up like neon like only you can turn them on cock crows at the break of day sometimes in the afternoon just because he feels that way just because he feels it too

i'll aim straight so you can weave round me side to side spiralling wide like swimming in a gentle sea suspend a bridge from me to you of copper and brilliant blue just like the color of supernatural love hear you cry out where's my tribe painted on the inside behind your eyes
