Paris Morning

Passerine

I'm sorry that I'm calling late, I wish I'd gotten through
I woke up with a ringing in my ear and it told me to call you
There's a night's ocean between us, a light's separation
Far be it from me to complain, but I wish you shared my locationMaybe it's cause I'm missing you
Maybe it's cause I've been here too long
Maybe it's cause the wine's too warm
Either way I'll just sing my songOn this cobbled street we will meet
At the dawning, of this morning
Though we're apart, you're in my heart
On this morning, Paris morningAnd though you're miles away, here I must stay
Torn at the seams, I'll meet you in dreams
Street lights go down, awake comes this town
To the dawning, Paris MorningLying in this human locker on the second floor
Midnight laughs, bumps in the dark and breakfast seeps under the door
The old guard has our locket and every corner whispers your name
So I'll lose myself in our city, til we're back together againMaybe it's cause I'm missing you
Maybe it's cause I've been here too long
Maybe it's cause the wine's too warm
Either way I'll just sing my songOn this cobbled street we will meet
At the dawning, of this morning
Though we're apart, you're in my heart
On this morning, Paris morningAnd though you're miles away, here I must stay
Torn at the seams, I'll meet you in dreams
Street lights go down, awake comes this town
To the dawning, Paris MorningAnd maybe it's 'cause I am missing you
And maybe it's 'cause I've been here too long
And maybe it's 'cause, and maybe it's 'cause
And maybe it's 'cause the wine is too warm
Either way, I'll just sing, I'll just singCobbled street under my feet at the dawning
Paris morning
Though we're apart, you're in my heart at the morning
Paris morning
And though you're miles away, here I must stay
Torn at the seams, I'll meet you in dreams
Street lights go down, awake comes this town to the dawning
Paris morning
