

Sorrel

Wishbone Ash

Advisory - the following lyrics contain explicit language:

In a garden of the southland
He found her wandering astray
She came to show him of her beauty
That many passersby don't see Would you be taking in such frail looking lady?
The sadness of her lone display Dressed in yellow fire burning
The corner dweller on the lane
Sorrow was her only feeling
For she could have no living shame Take good care and time to sow your own true seed
The summers end will bring your leaving Then he journeyed for a long ways
And she was never in his mind
Came he home to just a memory
For the lady she had died Take good care and time to sow your own true seed
The summers end will bring your leaving

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnyrics.com/>