

Rachel Talks About "the Same Man"

Rachel Loy

This is for you my friend
I'm waiting on the other end checkin' every day to see if you wrote me a letter

This is 'cause I miss my friend off fighting with the other men but you know I couldn't be more proud even if I felt bitter

Chorus:

'Cause the same man who held me so close that night is the same man now sleeping with his gun And the same man who would never ever start a fight is the same man never ever run

I thought of you again last night Thought of you in a brand new light Head high with your proud stare never looking back

I know you'll fight bravely I know it 'cause you promised me soon you'll be home with your short hair and your funny little laugh

'Cause the same man who left me speechless with his eyes is the same man who's squinting in the sun And the same man who never ever start a fight is the same man who would never ever run And the same man who left my heart all big and sore is the same man now facing his death And the same man who would never ever start a war is the same man who would always protect

So this is for you my friend
I'm waiting on the other end
checkin' every day to see
if you wrote me a letter
