You Decide It

Orange Grove

Itâ€™s your life you decide it, so many others lost their way
Itâ€™s your life you decide it, itâ€™s yours to use or throw away

Your heart, it took a beating
It was caught and stabbed, left bleeding
Now those feelings they seem so deceiving
Nothing is coming your way so youâ€™re running away
You fought, you begged, you pleaded
In the end you lost just what you needed
Now it is so hard to even believe in it
Nothing is coming your way cause youâ€™re running away

Itâ€™s your life you decide it, so many others lost their way
Itâ€™s your life you decide it, itâ€™s yours to use or throw away

All eyes were on her like so many I adored her
The way she walked, the way she talked, all like a pre-Madonna
She carried a high price, being nice couldnâ€™t afford her, but while the stares had her cornered what she wanted just ignored her
What the love once did drugsâ€™ll never do for her
Theyâ€™ll just pick her off the ground to let her go and then ignore her
Have her lost in the ruins of her Sodom and Gamorra and thatâ€™s just the order of the day
You fought, you begged, you pleaded
In the end you lost just what you needed
Now it is so hard to even believe in it
Nothing is coming your way cause youâ€™re running away

Itâ€™s your life you decide it, so many others lost their way
Whoâ€™s to say you wonâ€™t be the same. Just another life gone washed down the drain
Itâ€™s your life you decide it, itâ€™s yours to use or throw away
What good is your life anyway, if you nah wan use it and just throw it away
