Anything

Plain White TÂ´s

I see your face in the frame on my desk
It meant a lot, now it means a lot less
It's just a place for the dust in my room to restI see the letters that were written for me
They said you cared and I totally believed
They didn't mention that 5 months later you'd leaveYou could've told me anything
You could've told me anything
You could've told me anything
To make me understand 'cuz I don't understandI see the bracelet you gave me back then
Made it for me so I'd never forget
It must of worked 'cuz I haven't forgotten you yetI see the bed where we used to mess around
We'd talk for hours before you'd go down
That was before you decided not to keep me aroundYou could've told me anything
You could've told me anything
You could've told me anything
To make me understandYou could've told me anything
You could've told me anything
You could've told me anything
To make me understand 'cuz I don't understandYou could've told me why you had to go
I tried to tell myself just let it go
But I see your face, it's everywhere I goYou could've told me anything
You could've told me anything
You could've told me anything
To make me understandYou could've told me anything
You could've told me anything
You could've told me anything
To make me understand 'cuz I don't understand
'Cuz I don't understand, no, I don't understand
