Slippery Case - Part II

Innerspace

The perpetual nights in isolation
The caged animal roars in madness
His fantasies growing in forbidden dreams
His body now trembles of beastly desires

He summoned the pleasure provider for a secret mission
He promised her a first class ticket to heaven skies
She succumbed to an offer that could have saved her tarnished soul
He fiercely took her next to the river

The scandal was exposed in broad daylight
Mister Mayor was the most shocked
By the trespass act of their faithÂ´s guardian
Caught eating the forbidden fruit

But now who is to blame for this huge crime?
Who urged the holy man to give in?
How could the witch have bewitched him?
WasnÂ´t he protected from Evil?

Do you think one day,
that they will listen to my voice again to guide them through the storm?
Do you think one day,
that the religion dies and each of us will be lost in the emptiness forever?
Do you think one day,
that the devils at the brink of the abyss will see the light beyond the clouds?
Do you think one day,
that the canons wonÂ´t discharge and all the worldÂ´s deserts will be transformed into green plains?
Do you think one day,
that the sheep will return to the enclosure from fear of getting eaten by the wolf?
Do you think one day,
that they will eat enough dust and these traitors will prostrate at my holy feet again?
Do you think one day,
that their insolent faces and their naive vanity will turn against them?
Do you think one day,
that my reign will come and my venerable kingdom will last until the end of time?

Lyrics submitted by Roger Brown.

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/