Just Before The Morning

Matt Morris

You were mine
Your surrender was a perfect rhyme
And in the night I whispered
You were mine
And I sang you a lullaby
Now my head swims with
Every careless word you said
In between the rhythm of your breath
My heart bled
So tell me when did love
Turn into anther soil dug
How did we forget to open up
Where did we mess this upAnd why did I leave
Just before the morning, oh oh
Just before the morning, oh oh
Just before the morning, oh oh
Just before the morning, oh ohAnd this can't be real
This is something you pretend to feel
When a broken heart is cold as steel
How can it ever heal
Give me pain
Give me something I can feel again
Lead me to surrender, I'll give in
And I'll let you winWhy did I leave
Just before the morning, oh oh
Just before the morning, oh oh
Just before the morning, oh oh
Just before the morning, oh ohWhy did I leave
Oh, why did I leave
Just before the morning
Just before the morning
Just before the morning
