She Doesn't Ask

Linda Davis

He's distant most of the time
He's busy too much on his mind
He rarely answers her back
She doesn't askHe tiptoes in late at night
He changes without the light
He's been this way in the past
So she doesn't askShe doesn't ask
If he's still working overtime
She doesn't ask
If he's coming or going
She's tired of the same old lines
She doesn't askShe's loved him through all the years
Three children and two careers
She wonders if it will last
But she doesn't knowShe doesn't ask
Why they're living such different lives
She doesn't ask
Why they sleep in the same bed
Always on separate sides
She doesn't askWill he cry when she is gone?
Will he stay lonely for long?
Does he know she won't be back?
She doesn't ask
