Imperiled Eyes

Annihilator

Centuries of war and waste
Have dealt a mortal blow
Mother Earth begins to rot
Humanity on death rowLife does slowly cease to be
Death seems so surreal
As earth becomes a vacant lot
There's nothing left to healNo color in the skies, no one left to blame
And we thought we were wise
As I fade, I feel revived, shocked back into life
Opening imperiled eyes, imperiled eyesCessation of physical life
Blackness rains from above
What right did power have
To annihilate the earth I lovedNow a barren wasteland
The die is cast
A planet that once did teem with life
No evidence of a pastNo color in the skies, no one left to blame
And we thought we were wise
As I fade, I feel revived, shocked back into life
Opening imperiled eyes, imperiled eyesCenturies of war and waste
Have dealt a mortal blow
Mother Earth is now no more
And we thought we were wise
As I fade, I feel revived, shocked back into life
Opening imperiled eyes, imperiled eyes
