

Pick Your Battles

Eli "Paperboy" Reed

A hard headed woman and a stubborn kind of man
You know they're always searching trying to find the upper hand
    But when you win, you might be losing
    And anyway love ain't a game
    When you really love somebody
    Sometimes you've got to take the blame

    And you've got to pick your battles
    You've got to choose which ones to fight
    Oh cause it doesn't really matter
    Oh whose wrong or right

    Oh and you know love is fragile
    It'll break before it bends
    Mmm hmmm so you've got to pick your battles
    To make it work out in the end

    I once had a good woman
    She was true and sweet and kind
    And you know I always told her
    Just what was on my mind

    But sometimes the best thing
    Whoa isn't anything at all
    Think twice before you speak now
    Or she won't be there to break your fall

    So you've got to pick your battles
    You've got to choose which ones to fight
    Oh cause it doesn't really matter
    Oh whose wrong or right

    Oh and you know love is fragile
    Whoa it'll break before it bends
    Oh yeah so you've got to pick your battles
    To make it work out in the end

    Oh yes you've got to pick your battles
    To make it work out in the end

Lyrics submitted by Jesus Rodriguez.

Lyrics provided by
<https://damnlyrics.com/>