

Tiny Trinkets

The Ennis Sisters

Unpacking decorations, to hang upon the tree on branches strong and sturdy, to hold my memories some are old and faded, others are brand new but each one holds the story of my christmases with you

Decorations placed upon the tree, the star is shining bright I've got sentimental feelings from christmases gone by watching as they catch the lights, the green, the red and blue each one holds the story of my christmases with you

I love the way they sparkle, I love the way they shine I love the way they take me back, to once upon a time my christmas tree may never be the one thats most in style it will always be the one that makes me smile

There isn't one i'd throw away, not one i'd leave behind what matters now is the joys thats found, in thoughts they bring to mind how these tiny trinkets make me feel the way I do each one holds the story of my christmases with you my christmases, with you.
