I Let It Slip

Christy Altomare

(Verse 1)

Take today,
Itâ€™s a nice day to be alive.
Sunny crisp December is rolling by.
Never thought the seasons could make you cry.
Then it hits you, youâ€™re alone.

Singing carols, counting stars,
Laughing, locking you out of the car.
Something magical about those nights,
And then it hits you, youâ€™re alone.

(Refrain)

Iâ€™m always the one rushing in too fast,
Never wondering if it could ever last.
Can another you come and rescue me?
Because Iâ€™m due.
Ohhh ohhhhh ohhhhhhhh

(Verse 2)

And there you are,
With the linens and wrinkled sheets,
And the morning pancakes we used to eat.
Never thought the syrup could taste so sweet.
Then it hits you, youâ€™re alone.

Flipping stations, passing bars,
Laughing, listening while you play guitar.
Something wonderful that felt so right,
And then it hits you, you're alone.

(Refrain)

Iâ€™m always the one rushing in too fast,
Never wondering if it could ever last.
Can another you come and rescue me?
Because Iâ€™m due.

Ohhh ohhhhh ohhhhhhhhhhhh oh

(Verse 3/Bridge)

And the days go on,
And he thinks I'm lucky cause I
Get to do the things that I love.

And the nights grow long,
And my mind's not ready to escape
From all my heart's thinking of.

Pick up the phone,
And there you are.
You ask me how I've been,
How I like it here so far.
And when you had to go,
I let it slip:
I love you.
But that's because it's all I know.

(Refrain)

Iâ€™m always the one rushing in too fast,
Never wondering if it could ever last.
Can another you come and rescue me?
Because Iâ€™m due,
Ohhh ohhhhhhh ohhhhhhhhhhhhhhh ohhhoohhhh ohhhhhhhhhhhhhhhhhhhhhhh
