

I Have Nothing More to Say

Teenage Fanclub

Clear me a space
I'm in need of isolation
A warm dark bed to ease my strain
Been away too long
My head is overloaded
Rust in my bones, I have doubts in my veins I need only reassurance
I have nothing more to say
In the morning I'll be brighter
If I lay my ways beside her I have wasted days
I've had troubles at my door
Sister, I haven't felt so far from home
And my whole heart aches
For the warmth and light before
This old psychosis twisted my brain
I need only reassurance
I have nothing more to say
In the morning I'll be brighter
If I lay my ways beside her
