

Time Is Mine

Philip Anselmo

Lift me up, lift me up
Put me above jail but put me below skies
Below crimson skiesUndress me from these rags
Shake me and watch me glow
Foundations cracking under
The wisdom of our stepsLift me up and shake me low
Shake and glow and life will be savedTime is mine, ignore the blind
It won't be long till the writing is gone
And time will fly, a burden on life lifted high
And precisely through wisdom and war, wisdom and warBraided veins, can turn to gold
Smoke and stone will claim the skies
And open all whose eyes are blindThe tempter is behind thee
And cowers through the throes
The sands that drank from blood
To rivers that flow beyondTime is mine, ignore the blind
It won't be long till the writing is gone
And time will fly, the tied hands of man
And you will understand through the pains of rebirthTime is mine, the choking of seas
I won't be wrong when the scriptures are gone
And time will fly, a burden on life lifted high
And precisely through wisdom and warDeplete the eyes
Walk through the skies
In the memories of old
We'll blow it all awayTime is mine, ignore the blind
It won't be long till the writing is gone
And time will fly, the tied hands of man
And you will understand through the pains of rebirthTime is mine, the choking of seas
I won't be wrong when the scriptures are gone
And time will fly, a burden on life lifted high
And precisely through wisdom and war
