

Where Did You Go?

Valencia

And it feels like this is the last chance I have to say
Every word that I've been fighting
Well, I have finally decided to hold my head up with pride
And accept the way life takes you through these changes
'Cause when you reach the stars you've made it It's just there's something that I've been dying to let you know
And now that you're gone I'm holding on and I just can't let go I get a little down on myself
But when you came around my world felt new
I opened up my eyes to the light
And I saw deep inside of a love that was true And if I ever let you go I'm hoping that some time will show
That you're the one, you're the one for me And it feels like this is the perfect time
For me to say that deep down inside I'm hurting
But at least I know you're worth it And if I hold myself with pride and accept the pain
Then life will take me through these changes
'Cause I have so much left to see It's just there's something that I've been dying to let you know
'Cause now that you're gone I'm holding on and I just can't let go I get a little down on myself
But when you came around my world felt new
I opened up my eyes to the light
And I saw deep inside of a love that was true And if I ever let you go I'm hoping that some time will show
That you're the one, you're the one for me So let's go back down to the bank of that river where
We can dive right in and forget
About the worries from the world outside
'Cause you know my world, my worlds not over
Because I have an angel on my shoulder And I'll be coming home and when I feel those butterflies
I'll see that I need to find a better way
Just to believe you're gone
So long, some day I'll find the strength to move on I get a little down on myself
But when you came around my world felt new
I opened up my eyes to the light
And I saw deep inside of a love that was true And if I ever let you go I'm hoping that some time will show
'Cause you're the one, you're the one for me
