Riviera

Big Head Todd And The Monsters

Just a little bit gun-shy With a criminal mind She came in like an animal And left like an innocent child Now I'm stranded on empty Across nation lines Clear night like a rosary Against a dashboard light Driving to you, Riviera How can you run? Now the moon and the pavement Are like noon daylight Smokestacks and the gambling signs Along the black horizon line I once had a sister like you Lost on the other side You run because you have to From the firing lines Shot into you Riviera How can you run? And how long can you run? Ain't it strange how the ones you steal They keep you alive How she could make you feel Like you never been high? I can't remember what was real Like a killer in denial Careful to conceal Every last line Leading to you, Riviera I deliver to you, Riviera How long can you run? And how long can you run? And how long can you run?
