Out on My Own

Gabrielle Aplin

I think Ive outgrown my home
Im kind of feeling lost wherever I go
And I could be staring it right in the face and I wouldnt know
I think Ive outgrown my homeI have a song in my heart
And just like life it has a middle, an end, and a start
And who knows if Im on the path if Im walking in the dark?
I have a song in my heartIm happy just to float
Wherever this river flowsIm just finding my feet, pounding the street, hoping that someday it will come
And Ive got to leave, write my own tragedies
Keep my old bridges there to burn
Leave all doors open, I dont know if Ill return
Im out on my own
Heading out on my ownAll of the faces I have seen,
Are lacking kindness and familiarity
And all of the eyes I have known have gone cold and turned to stone
All of the faces I have knownIm happy just to float
Wherever this river flowsIm just finding my feet, pounding the street, hoping that someday it will come
And Ive got to leave, write my own tragedies
Keep my old bridges there to burn
Leave all doors open, I dont know if Ill return
Im out on my own
Heading out on my ownIts not the end
No its just the change
My worlds gone cold
And my lifes turned grey
I need some shelter through my darkest days
I know Ill be back some dayIm just finding my feet, pounding the street, hoping that someday it will come
And Ive got to leave, write my own tragedies
Keep my old bridges there
Im just finding my feet, pounding the street, hoping that someday it will come
And Ive got to leave, write my own tragedies
Keep my old bridges there to burn
Leave all doors open, I dont know if Ill return
Im out on my own
Heading out on my own
Im out on my own
Heading out on my own
