

Silent Sky

DaiQing Tana

Silent Sky by DaiQing Tana and the Haya Band

-----

--- my English understanding, advanced apologies if misunderstood ---

Sung in Mongolian:

Sunrise, moonset, the world revolves endlessly.
Your eternal distance silhouetteâ€™s is melting into in the sunset.
Happiness finally found, however, comes to grief.
The silent prayer is only to appease the soul of dedication.
When everything returns in silence, I have no more desire.
When everything returns in silence, I have no more desire.

Sunrise, moonset, the world revolves endlessly.
Your eternal distance silhouetteâ€™s is melting into in the sunset.
Happiness finally found, however, comes to grief.
The silent prayer is only to appease the soul of dedication.
When everything returns in silence, I have no more desire.
When everything returns in silence, I have no more desire.

Sung in Chinese Mandarin:

In the wind of the grasslands,
There are people in my heart.
Wind ah, please blow gentle.
Listen to his, sad songs.
Moon, give him light.
Fire ah, you warm him.
