

Dotted Lines

The Gamits

i spun around in the moonlit sky i'm hanging over like a satellite you wanna understand but i can't explain i knew you well before i said your name outloud now it seems I'm a day behind staying up until I'm going blind i hear your voice and all the noise ends i want to draw you in dotted lines cut you out until i make you mine i'll sew you to the sleeve of my favorite coat take you with me everywhere i go I'll write us both a bridge we can walk across all one line so we can't get lost and meet you at the ever after i spent last night thinking of new words to make up i passed my time wishing that i'd never wake up i memorized all the colored words sealed them up and folded into thirds i had to borrow lines 'cause im running out disappearing in the sunlight now i can't hear anything over all this sound another wave and i will surely drown i hear your voice and all the noise ends
