

Now You're Waiting

Karl Valentine

he sits at home,
playing video games
doesn't change a thing, he always feels the same

calls her up,
leaves a message on the phone
he says "hello,
call me when you get back home."

now he's waiting,
he feels so all alone
now he's chasing,
a dream he can't control

she gets home late,
from her casual date
hears his voice on the tape, wonders if he'll ever change she dreams of someone, who will come along

maybe sing her a song,
about a world filled with love

now she's waiting,
she feels so all alone
now she's chasing,
a dream she can't control

i tune these strings, i'm singing in a minor key wondering where i'll be, come next January

i see her eyes,
cut me down to my knees
oh, what more must i see, this woman could set me free

now iâ€™m waiting,
i feel so all alone
now iâ€™m chasing,
a dream i canâ€™t control

now youâ€™re waiting,
you feel so all alone
now youâ€™re chasing,
a dream you canâ€™t control

Karl Valentine Â© 1997

Lyrics submitted by Karl Valentine.

Lyrics provided by <https://damnllyrics.com/>