

Waiting to Be Opened

The Rembrandts

So you've loved and you've lost
You won't take another chance at any cost
You've run up against a wall
And you've been hurt so badly, just badly enough to risk it all
And in the dark, you see your star shine through the window
All through the night you strain to understand
Close your eyes and you will see
There are dreams that are waiting to be woven
Don't you weep 'cause in your sleep
There are doorways waiting to be opened
And now you hide beneath yourself
You you don't let on, that you could want for someone else
So you carry this torch alone
Even though deep down you know she'll be the only one
And in the dark, you see your star shine through the window
All through the night you strain to understand
Close your eyes and you will see
There are dreams that are waiting to be woven
And don't you weep 'cause in your sleep
There are doorways waiting to be opened
On to the end
Hold back the tears, you feel like cryin'
Oh, please, don't pretend
That there's no hope and give up tryin'
There are doorways waiting to be opened
Close your eyes and you will see
There are dreams that are waiting to be woven
Don't you weep 'cause in your sleep
There are doorways waiting to be opened
Close your eyes and dream and dream
Waiting to be opened
Close your eyes
