Stranger To the World

PollyAnna

With my nose up to the sky I walk around like it's my paradise
I guess there's no place we belong toChildren play around the world the same games but they use other words
Still there is no place like homeAnd I wonder what it is that makes me feel so close to the earth
Beneath my feat a fire drives me crazy sometimesThe fire makes me run and lose my feat
Yet this strange town feels so known
Oh so knownStrange town to me
But I'm a stranger to the world
And every time I breathe I notice
That I'm just the sameThe stars the moon up in the sky
They look the same, maybe more bright
Now tell me, what do they say?Will I be famous? Will I stay small?
Make a career? Maybe none of all
Now tell me what is my faith?All these maybe's, no one confirms
It drives me to run around the world
Beneath my feet a fire drives me crazy sometimes
