

Drift Away

Seranation

I've just been wasting my time, talking to the mirror like who am I. Cause I don't even know anymore, looking like a city slicker I could never be one change the channel stuck on a rerun. It's just another scene I've seen before. I'm still laying around I don't even know what for. Landlocked and tied up, to big buildings that light up. This ain't what I had in mind, got wind in my sails but out from the ground. Dragging my anchor all over this town waiting for a change in the tide. Oh, it's too much I've had enough this place is not for everyone, take me to the water I wanna feel the sun on my face this city's gonna eat me alive just for the taste, just for the taste. So take me to the water where everything will drift away. Oh, it's too much I've had enough this place is not for everyone. Take me to water I wanna feel the sun on my face, (oh yeahh) this city's gonna eat me alive just for the taste just for the taste so take me to the water just take me away, take me away, take me to the water where everything will drift away.
