

Sirens of the Citylight

Thomas Azier

Call him the siren of the citylight
Luring the boys into the after life
Ready to sing you a seductive line
All the time

Shivering voices are about to cry
Sending his dreams away into the night
Humming himself a little lullaby all the time
And when the sun goes down he's on his way

Cuz' they are ready to come out and playWaiting for the sunrise x2Smothering smoke is what he breathes

Swaying his body into the street
Making his money pretty easily

Most of the timeAnd when the sun goes down he's on his way
They are ready to come out and playWaiting for the sunrise x3
Sirens of the CitylightThe pace is low, the cars are moving slow

The rhythm of the night slowly calms down
In black leather seats he roams the broken streets
He can't be more alone so he stays with him the nightWaiting for the sunrise x3
Sirens of the Citylight
