Full Moon

Sonata Arctica

Sitting in the corner all alone,
Staring from the bottom of his soul,
Watching tonight come in from the window, window

It'll all collapse tonight, the Full Moon is here again,
In sickness and in health, understanding, so demanding,
It has no name, there's one for every season,
Makes him insane to know...

Running away from it all,
"I'll be safe in the cornfields" he thinks,
Hunted by his own,
Again he feels the moon rising in the sky

Find a barn in which to sleep in, but can he hide anymore,
Someone's at the door, understanding, too demanding,
Can this be wrong, it's love that is not ending,
Makes him insane to know...

She should not lock the open door,
(Run away, run away, run away)
Full Moon is on the sky and he's not a man anymore
She sees the change in him but can't
(Run away, run away, run away)
See what became of her man... Full Moon

Swimming across the bay,
The night is gray, so calm today,
She doesn't wanna wait,
"We've gotta make the love complete tonight"

In the mist of the morning he cannot fight anymore,
Hundreds moons or more, he's been howling,
Knock on the door, and scream that is soon ending,
Mess on the floor again...

She should not lock the open door,
(Run away, run away, run away)
Full Moon is on the sky and he's not a man anymore,
She sees the changes in him but can't,

(Run away, run away, run away)
See what became of her man

She should not lock the open door,
(Run away, run away, run away)
Full Moon is on the sky and he's not a man anymore,
She sees the changes in him but can't,
(Run away, run away, run away)
See what became of her darling man

She should not lock the open door...
(Run away, run away, run away)
Full Moon is on the sky and he's not a man anymore,
Whoa...WHOA!
See what became out of that man.

Lyrics submitted by Brian.

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/