Coming to a Close

Halfway Deserted

Everything I do begins with you
When the sun floats up
And the morning dew is frozen there on the side of the road
And I'm still on my way from way back there
How the time has passed
I'm not looking back from here

Falling past me
All I see is everything just falling to the ground
If you'll listen, try to hold on
Everything is coming to a close

If the air's not thin enough for you
We can launch ourselves into outer space
And spend the night above all of the waves
Your atmosphere is not cool enough to kill
When you're in love you've got time to waste

Falling past me
All I see is everything just falling to the ground
Well if you'll listen, try to hold on
Everything is coming to a close

This distance must be dying to fade away some day
And I won't bid you farewell until I'm lying in my grave

Falling past me
All I see is everything just falling to the ground
Well if you'll listen, try to hold on

Or is this just the beginning?
