Red Sky

Brandon Heath

There's a man on my street
He reminds me everyday
Better take what you can get
Cause there's nothing more than thisDaylight fades into the ground
Oh Lord, I need You nowCover me with the red sky tonight
The promise of a better day to come
Sing over me an angelic symphony
Tell me everything will be alright
With the red sky tonightWe're so taken with our fear
That we're folded up in shame
With our feet nailed to the floor
We're the only ones to blameI can't help but wonder why nobody bats an eye
You can see it in the faces of all the passers bySo cover me with the red sky tonight
The promise of a better day to come
Sing over me an angelic symphony
Tell me everything will be alrightI sail into the sun when the day is done
I need You in the night
So wake me in the dark
I see You in the sun when the day is doneCover me with the red sky tonight
The promise of a better day will come
Sing over me an angelic symphony
Tell me everything will be alright
Tell me everything will be alright
Tell me everything will be alrightIt's a red sky, it's a red sky tonight
