Flying

Grammatrain

Last night I dreamt a strange, peculiar dream
A child slept underneath a great bird's wing
Laid on the ground where warmth was found
Until he woke and crawled away on hands and kneesFlying In My DreamA snake told stories to the child untrue
The child bent down and felt its poison tooth
Started to die, the bird did fly
Swallowed the snake to save the child, and then he diedFlying In My DreamThe dead bird laid, for three whole days
Then spread its wings and flew awayI woke up early while the sun still slept
This strange dream circulating in my head
Stared at the ceiling, pondered its meaning
The dream would not leave me although I left my bedFlying In My DreamThe dead bird laid, for three whole days
Then spread its wings and flew awayIn My Dream
