

We All Look Elsewhere (Revisited)

The Classic Crime

Lost sense, direction
Nobody knows my name
Confidence, correction
Don't know how to play that gameStraight line is quicker
Straight line would make me fast
I've burned my nose enough to know
That straight lines never lastSwallow your soul
And drink from this life
As you choke on your prideWe all look elsewhere
We all look elsewhereIt's safer inside doors
Nobody has to flee
Broken vessel
Passed the rocks and out to seaWaiting, wanting
Mad with purpose
Now we come to talk to one
Who knows the answer to howSwallow your soul
And drink from this life
As you choke on your prideDon't waste your time if you've got it
The tides are turning now
You are not aloneThey gave you their worst and you bought it
The lie has been exposed
You are not aloneWinter that comes quick in early September
The rain clouds that washed me are what I remember
The stones that I threw piled high like a mountain
Which I had to climb before I reached the fountainIf life is a riddle then riddle me this
The blood tasted sweet as it passed by my lipsDon't, don't waste your time
Don't, don't waste your time
Don't waste your timeDon't waste your time if you've got it
The tides are turning now
You are not alone, liar, liarThey gave you their worst and you bought it
The lie has been exposed
You are not alone

Songwriters

MATTHEW MAC DONALDPublished by Lyrics Â© THE BICYCLE MUSIC COMPANY

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnyrics.com/>