Just Like You Said

Face to Face

And now that all is said and done
It's kind of hard to hold my tongue
Because you still don't believe you're wrongI'm not so sure what I would say
If I could talk to you that way
You wouldn't understandI was foolish from the start
I've tried not to fall apart
It's just like you said but everything is somehow differentI've tried hard not to admit
That there was some truth to it
It's just like you said but everything is somehow differentHave you ever imagined what you think
The way your circumstance would be?
And fixed a picture in your headI guess you've thought of everything
I'm sure you know much more than me
At least that's what you thinkIt shouldn't have to make you wonder
I thought you knew it all along, how I was innocent and pure
And you were smug and so demure
When you predicted I would fall
