

Leave You in Love

Gold Motel

Fell for you in a telephone booth.
Where I never ever told the truth.
I never love you much as I could miss you.
Dollhouse rooms and marble stairs.
You tattooed me with the pen your hair.
You can rest assured the ink is still there.

Shut it down. Start it up.
It didn't mean anything. It didn't mean much.
Shut it down. Start it up.
So I leave you in love.
So I leave you in love.

You came over with a bottle of bleach.
And dyed my hair blonde in the kitchen sink.
We learned how to kiss from magazines.
And each night we shared a bed.
You were talking in your sleep again.
An ancient language I thought you said.

Shut it down. Start it up.
It didn't mean anything. It didn't mean much.
Shut it down. Start it up.
So I leave you in love.
So I leave you in love.

We didn't move on. We didn't change.
We didn't move on. We just moved away.
We didn't move on. We didn't change.
We didn't move on. We just moved away.

Shut it down. Start it up.
It didn't mean anything. It didn't mean much.
Shut it down. Start it up.
So I leave you in love.
So I leave you in love.

We didn't move on. We didn't change.
We didn't move on. We just moved away.
We didn't move on. We didn't change.

We didn't move on. We just moved away.

So I leave you in love.
