Days And Days

Concrete Blonde

The dirty leaves are sailing on a hot wind ocean
And the summer comes and the summer goes and always has and will
And something somewhere that you said goes ricochet
All through my head and flashing like a neon sign, the time stood stillHours of forever, coming all together at the crossroads of a minute
And you and me were in it and I never saw it coming
Never saw it fade away, today, today, today
Days and days, days and days, days and days, days and daysAnd still the whining of the wheels sounds closest to the way I feel and Winter comes, and winter goes and always has and will
Another hour, another day, another year, you pissed away
Remember walking in the rain, I'm walking there stillIt's hours of forever, coming all together at the crossroads of a minute
And you and me were in it and I never saw it coming
Never saw it fade away, today, today, today
Days and days, days and days, days and days, days and daysLike every heart to beat before and every wave to kiss a shore
I'm not the first, I'm not the last and soon to be your past
But every morning, when the light comes creeping in around my eyes
Another future falls behind the one I had in mindIt's hours of forever, coming all together at the crossroads of a minute
And you and me were in it and I never saw it coming
Never saw it fade away, today, today, today
Days and days, days and days, days and days, days and days, daysDays and days and days and days, days and days and days and days
Come on now the years and the years and the days forever
It seems like forever, it seems like today
