Learning To Fall

Martina Mcbride

I was alone in the dark, never let down my guard
Closed the curtain on my heart
So the world could not see
All the demons in me, told myself I was free
Then you showed me how wrong I could be
Now I'm standing on a mountain of rubble that once was a wall
Took years to build around me and you came along
And you tore it down like it was nothin' at all
Now it's a little scary, learning to fall
When you looked in my eyes, past the fear and false pride
You saw goodness inside
I can't believe how I feel, I believe love is real
And I'm ready to heal
And you show me how right I can be
Now I'm standing on a mountain of rubble that once was a wall
Took years to build around me and you came along
And you tore it down like it was nothin' at all
Now it's a little scary, learning to fall
I was holdin' on, now I'm letting go
I was holdin' on, now I'm letting go
I was holdin' on, now I'm letting go
Now I'm standing on a mountain of rubble that once was a wall
Took years to build around me and you came along
And you tore it down like it was nothin' at all
Now it's a little scary, learning to fall, oh yeah
