Further Seems Forever

Give up what you think you have to say
Formalities weaken the meaning that you'd convey
In truth hidden in the veiled insults
Have failed results for everyone that lived that way
The training spent on all your words
Was obvious in all we heard was repetition
Representing your best interests while wishing us "The very best"
When that is something that you would never give
And some things are better stressed
When unexpressed
'Cause silence can be overwhelming
We'll find some way to prove you wrong
