

Malnutrition

Spineshank

Dismiss your true state of mind
'Cause it's too hard to be
Convince yourself it's a lie
The guilt you do achieve Failure disguised your choice
You need another voice
Regrets confirmed your faults
I need another voice You're too far gone
Disengage yourself
To replace yourself
Look right through yourself
And deny yourself Guilt, it's in your voice it's on your face
But it looks malnourished
Greed, it took control and fed your mind
But it's still malnourished The contradictions you live
Have canceled out the truth
The desperation you show
Is just the focal point Nothing more than image
You need another voice
Your faults become regret
I need another choice, You're too far gone
Realign yourself
To escape yourself
See right through yourself
Give up on yourself Guilt, it's in your voice it's on your face
But it looks malnourished
Greed, it took control and fed your mind
But it's still malnourished Guilt, it's in your voice it's on your face
But it looks malnourished
Greed, it took control and fed your mind
But it's still malnourished Guilt, it's in your voice it's on your face
But it looks malnourished
Greed, it took control and fed your mind
But it's still malnourished

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnllyrics.com/>