you/me

Kelsey Colbert

I find comfort In the arms of a stranger
Walking down crowded streets
But no ones there to answer
Why I find comfort in the drama of the danger
Oh itâ€™s a small price to pay
For some distraction

Skin to skin, ignoring my guilt
Better yet Iâ€™m feeling me still Molding into the space between your arms

I choose you over me
No matter who that may be
Thought being wantedâ€™s better
Than being left wanting

I choose you over me
Iâ€™d sacrifice anything
For a temporary fix to loneliness
I choose you over me,
I choose you over me

I find comfort in giving all of my time
To the wrong guy
When the moment feels right
Right after shallow imitation
Of connection I hold onto I crave

Skin to skin, ignoring my guilt
Swear to God Iâ€™ll escape this hell
That mirrors heaven so perfectly

I choose you over me
No matter who that may be
Thought being wantedâ€™s better
Than being left wanting

I choose you over me
Iâ€™d sacrifice anything
For a temporary fix to loneliness

I choose you over me,
I choose you over me

Waited for you to come around
Like holding my breath under water
But your oxygen is like poison
So I hold my breath, I hold my-

Lyrics Submitted by Oghenete Oghenesume

Lyrics provided by https://damnlyrics.com/