

The Young Prince and Princess

Renaissance

And you would cause the sun to see your light and then be shamed
You cover darkness with a thousand secret flames with your love
Oh my love, oh my love, my love And I would cause the winds to blow a hundred different days
And bring the perfumes of the gardens of the ways of your love
Oh my love, oh my love, my love Crystal and the clay, nights and the day, all on the prince's seal
Eagle of the sky, lion of the earth
This is what the seal is worth, what the seal is worth Holds all of the dreams of a man
Tapestries wishes of man, pictures and visions of man
The spirit, the soul of the man

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnllyrics.com/>