

Your Eyes

Ari Herstand

The First glance I had on you I couldnt move
I forgot everything Id planned to do
The First glance I was caught staring, but I lost caring You silenced me and locked me with your eyesI tried to protest and reason gave me the test and I did what I thought best and releasedAnd we lapse again
And we crash again
And I cant beg the birds to sing
And I cant wear this comfort ring Oh my sight is lost in your eyesLast night you and me felt like we were meant to be, I was inside
We spoke
I knew what I was about to do would end with you pushing me aside But I spoke, I bumbed the glass it spilled out fast, everything, I held insideYou tried to protest and reason put you to rest and you did what you do best and released
You turned to me, face to cheek, I couldnt see but felt on me I made you cryAnd we lapse again
And wee crash again
And I cant beg the birds to sing
And I cant wear this comfort ring
Oh my sight is lost in your eyesThis time I thought the seas would change for me but the current tugged I gave up and shrugged Again Ill lose
Dont make me choose Ill be fine
