

Kelly, Cali, And Everything in Between

Before the Streetlights

Picture it

I'm in water up to my chest and you're the anchor that brought me this far down out of the clouds and its getting harder to breathe will you release me or stand there and watch me drown i'm so sorry cali your not worth all my dreams but if you say so i'm sure that i could let go you're so not worth it i hope that you miss this cause after i'm gone you'll need me you'll need me

imagine it

its you who brought me to this and i'm too much of you than i need to be every part of me is screaming let go let go but you're the addiction that i need so watch me as i break down

i'm so sorry cali your not worth all my dreams
but if you say so i'm sure that i could let go
you're so not worth it i hope that you miss this cause after i'm gone you'll need me you'll need me you'll lead me you'll lead me to all my broken dreams i'm just the boy that needs these i need these don't help me get up you're angry i get that but after i'm gone you'll need me you'll need me to open the door you've broken down by all the bullshit you're putting out, you think you're strong i'm right you're wrong i'll stand there laughing as you drown laughs

Lyrics submitted by Joshua Courtney.

Lyrics provided by

<https://damnlyrics.com/>